trains everywhere, disturbing
the natural order of things.

There are enough trains and other human-made so-called "vehicles" on our planet to transport all of mankind from a point to another at some point.

There.

"You are under no order to obey," he said to Mary. "He cannot detain you, and, should you come with me, I assure you the law of this state will re-inforce my efforts."

"I've been throwing stones," I tell Barbara Spannerhandle, "but this weekend in Kraków we found a catapult!"
Write that down, she says.

You are 90% more likely if you have a collective, or Molly for breakfast, sipping cider for brunch, salty deli pickles in a kosher Polish cafe, jump off trains like burning marionettes for a quick pull, and/or a scarper to the Bohumin train station potraviny for a hastily chosen armful of StaroBrnos's and two bags of Lays for sharesies.

At Hlavni Nadrazi I walk past this unlikely looking duffer shuffling behind his earbent bud', "I have some degree of skepticism about your navigation skills."

A singular piece of knob.

The 10%.

I write it down.

~~Tyko, Sandra and Jaronir~~ know where we are going. Know where we are at.

"There's no such thing as an edgy poet," I say, and Barbora Spannerhandle replies, "I wish I didn't have to care about art."

THIS IS MY BODY. THIS IS MY BOUNDARY. THERE ARE MANY LIKE IT BUT THIS ONE IS MINE.

We scribble that into a paper plane, toss it into the children's playpen and it's total war.

We are all happysadhappy at the same time but not sad, sitting next to each other, on top of each other, running around throwing shapes filled with secret messages, and we tie each other up in tattooed ribbons asking each other 'How does stuff make you feel?'

"Every time is the first time. Every time it's real."

'And if you feel nothing? What's that like?'

But these poets are edgy. These poets have so many edges.....they're ROUND, man!

They write that down.

Rising to the last frontier of a kissing booth, war masks, war paint and war pants tied voluntarily to the leather coat tails of our heroic planner dandy flappers casting spells, naked as the day Christ-pig was born. Handsomer than the handsomest leaders of a no-nation you ever saw; the holy trinity gone platinum, David's Sister riding her inversions into a fistful of hummus and warm Branik splooged.

So Barbara Spannerhandle glides into the red room, wades into the train carriage, creeps into the hostel drenched from the deluge and returns all the shit we lost over the last four years.
Eyes stuffed with love and great ideas and novelty drink dranks.

"That's no dancer, that's my wife!"

Uprooting the photographogenics before they get their faces vaped

"Just one more, just one more, just one more."

New Checkout Policy: Weighing All Items Now Mandatory at BILLA

(PROSTĚJOV) In an expected move, shoppers at the Austrian-owned BILLA supermarket chain are now obliged to weigh all items before advancing to checkout. This encompasses not only fruits and vegetables but extends to other groceries and household products.

Jan Jablko, Head of Consumer Strategy, reassured KROTCH reporters that while shoppers are mandated to weigh items, affixing the weight and price sticker directly to the product is optional. Instead, they still have the flexibility to place the sticker on or around the scale itself.

"Research has shown that consumers prefer the purchasing process to be as challenging as possible. That's exactly why we're introducing this mandate including pre-packaged apple sauce," asserted Jablko.

Train Derails from Denotation to Conotation

(BOHUMIN) Last weekend, the performance and poetics collective OBJECT:PARADISE derailed a train en route from Prague to Krakow in celebration of language.

The train, scheduled to arrive at 22:50, arrived a half hour later due to unexpected poetry readings on platform 3 of Bohumín just before crossing the Polish border.

The train was carrying passengers for the O.P. Performance, Deformance, Reformance event when the train conductor decided to let the writers have a smoke break on the platform for thirty minutes.

The group of fifty writers used the moment to have a spontaneous language happening that involved dance, laughter, singing, smoking, and limbo.

Such breaks are usually an annoyance to commuters, but the group saw the moment as an opportunity that could never be recreated and seized.

Poetry Reading to be Held in Echo Chamber (VINOHRADY) Members of the Vinohrady Avant-garde Poetry Ensemble (VAPE) have outlined their latest efforts to make real art by hosting their next Poetry reading entirely inside an echo chamber.

"In this new context, we will get to perform for ourselves, and therefore we will also be the audience of ourselves," said contributing VAPE writer, Verbum Vagrant.

When pushed by KROTCH reporters if this is the best way to get outsiders into the community of writing, VAPE representatives replied, "this is art --not a community center."

Event Attended only by Photographers

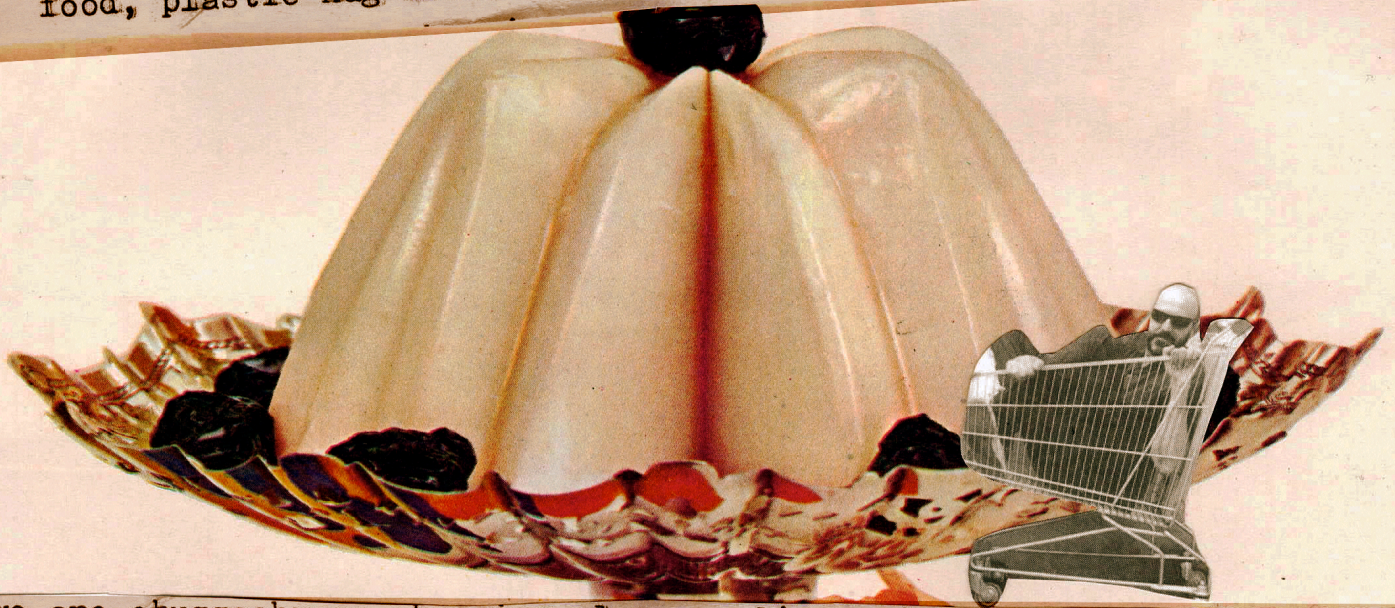

(Narodni Divadlo) Last Tuesday, photographers were suprised to discover that they were the only ones in attendance at a pop-up performance art event at the National Theater.

Although each was individually invited, photographers gathered to find only other photographers at the performance.

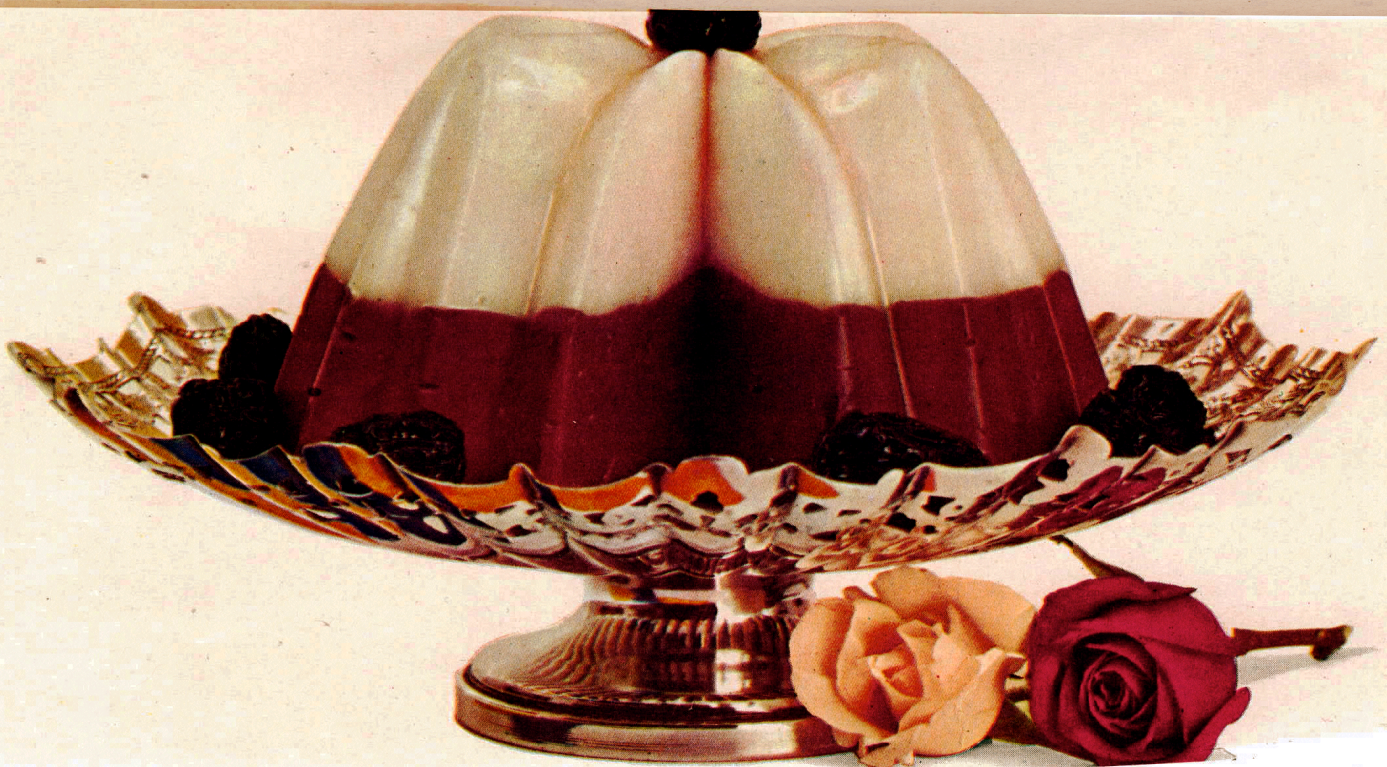

The event was deemed very successful due to the heavy media presence it attracted.

W4M (TRAIN : YOU KNOW WHO) - We had a great, private reading in the bathroom from PRG to KRW. Then it was a stand up comedy show that turned then into an against the wall performance. Anyways, I got some more poems to show you Johnny. Let's see where the next train goes.

M4W (TRAM) - On a Monday you rode the 10 or 16 from Namesti Miru to Moran. It was half past 5. I was enthralled by you. All lips and finger tattoos and rings. I could tell by your hands you're an artist of some kind. I regret not talking to you then. I wish you walked down Moran to Palackeho on another Monday. I would tap your shoulder, say howdy.

W4? (PRAGUE: I NEED A DRINK) - OKAY? ~~GET ME ONE.~~ I'LL BE THERE. I'M ALWAYS AT THE BAR NEAR YOUR HOUSE. OKAY?

MM4? (NOVE MESTO: HUMAN CANVAS WANTED) - you will come over, we will wine and fine you. you will take off your shoes, we will iron your socks. you will lay naked across our kitchen table. we will paint both the kitchen and your body. (we are looking for a muscley man as an inverted stencil for our kitchen). you get wine and ironed socks. email KROTCH if interested. serious inquires only.

W4W (BERLIN KARAOKE BAR : yakisoba girl) - you were eating yakisoba at IP Pavlova last saturday, croutched on a stoop crying into your tofu. You got sick and I felt bad and asked if I could hold your hair. I hope you got home okay.

M4W (BAR NEVINNY : HOW BEAUTIFUL YOU ARE) - You sat in the corner drinking kozel, writing on receipts from your wallet. I wanted to tell you how beatiful you are, your bangs, sharp chin, soft eyes.
